READING PASSAGE

51. Read the passage below carefully and in full sentences answer the questions that follow.

The use of mobile phones has taken over the telecommunication sector. This is because mobile phones have more advantages than the fixed lines. A mobile phone is portable because it is small and light. It can send and receive text and voice messages. Text messages are recorded in written form and the voice messages are recorded in spoken form.

In addition, a mobile phone can record all dialed, received or missed calls. Dialed calls are numbers of people you called. Missed calls are numbers of people who called you but did not get a response. You may miss a call when you are busy. You can miss a call when you are in a meeting and you can't talk on phone. Received calls are numbers of people you responded to.

You can delete all or some of the dialed, received or missed calls from your phone. You can also save them in your phonebook. It is easy to find names in a phonebook because they are arranged in alphabetical order.

A mobile phone has games in case you want to relax. The common one is the "snake". You make the snake grow longer by directing it to food. Other important functions on the phone are; the Internet, calendar, calculator, radio, camera, mobile money services and others.
